Where to start looking

Finding consistent remote VA work rarely comes from one lucky application. It comes from showing up, daily and deliberately, across the right mix of platforms — freelance marketplaces, dedicated remote job boards, and virtual assistant agencies.

This kit gives you 38 websites across all four categories, a beginner-friendly starting list, and the red flags that protect you from scams along the way.

websites	platform categories	best for beginners

Freelance marketplaces

Build a profile, bid on projects, and grow a client base over time.

1 Upwork
upwork.com
One of the largest freelance platforms with thousands of virtual assistant opportunities.

2 Fiverr
fiverr.com
Create service packages and attract clients worldwide.

3 Freelancer
freelancer.com
Global freelance marketplace with many remote jobs.

4 Guru

Popular platform for remote professionals.

Why this category matters

Marketplaces are the easiest entry point — no gatekeeping, you set up a profile and start applying the same day. The trade-off is more competition, so a sharp profile and tailored proposals matter here more than anywhere else.

Remote job boards

Apply directly to companies hiring for remote, often longer-term, roles.

7 FlexJobs
flexjobs.com
Premium job board featuring verified remote jobs.

8 Remote.co
remote.co
Specializes in remote work opportunities.

9 We Work Remotely
weworkremotely.com
One of the largest remote job communities.

10 DailyRemote
dailyremote.com
Remote jobs updated daily.

11 LinkedIn Jobs
linkedin.com/jobs
Professional networking platform with remote opportunities.

12 Indeed
indeed.com
Large job search engine with remote listings.

13 ZipRecruiter
ziprecruiter.com
Job board featuring many work-from-home positions.

14 Wellfound
wellfound.com
Startup jobs and remote positions (formerly AngelList).

15 Jobgether
jobgether.com
Platform dedicated to remote employment.

16 Remote OK
remoteok.com
Remote jobs from companies around the world.

17 Dynamite Jobs
dynamitejobs.com
Curated remote opportunities.

Africa-focused platforms

Job boards and platforms built with African talent in mind.

18 Remote4Africa

Red flags to avoid

If you see any of these, walk away.

- ✕ Companies asking for upfront fees.
- ✕ Telegram-only interviews.
- ✕ Requests for banking information before hiring.
- ✕ Unrealistic pay promises.
- ✕ Recruiters using personal email addresses with no company website.

Best strategy

Apply to 5–10 websites consistently rather than relying on one platform. Create a strong resume, optimize your LinkedIn profile, and apply daily. Consistency and volume are key to landing remote virtual assistant work.

Go put yourself out there.

You now have 38 places to start, a beginner shortlist, and the red flags to steer clear of. The only variable left is consistency — show up daily, apply widely, and keep refining as you learn what works.
